Nine New Models For Transporting Newborns And Toddlers

The stroller market has never been more competitive or dynamic than it is today. Full of tip-top choices, parents may have to do a little more research, but the end result is well worth it: a great piece of equipment for you and your baby. (And they look pretty sweet, too.)

1. 4moms Origami Stroller

The 4moms Origami is a power-folding, cell phone-charging, mileage-counting, LCD-sporting stroller with generators in the rear wheels that charge as you walk. Plus, the Origami has daytime running lights, pathway lights for low-light conditions and sensors that detect when a child's in the seat—so it will never fold by accident.

2. Aprica presto™ flat

Newborn and toddler modes on the presto™ flat will accommodate your growing child while an integrated carry strap keeps you both effortlessly mobile. Aprica has included a built-in seat ventilation panel to keep baby comfortable as the four-position recline feature goes from upright to flat for peaceful sleeping.
